According to the U.S. Department of Labor, Quick Stats on Women Workers, 2009, over 59% of women in the United States are currently in the workforce, many of whom have children living at home. And the number of single-parent homes is also increasing dramatically. If you are one of the many members of the workforce that is also the primary caretaker for a child, you know that balancing work and home responsibilities can be a real challenge!

Honeywell's Total Connect Video Services can put you at ease, knowing you can look-in on your household when you can't be there. This service lets you see your family from almost anywhere by viewing live video of what is happening in and around your home.

You won't need to worry if the nanny or babysitter is taking proper care of your child, you can simply look in anytime you want via your office PC or the same mobile devices you use every day.

You can even set up the system to send you a video clip or photo every time the door opens, so you'll know if your children are properly dressed for the weather if they are going outside. You can also receive these same alerts when your children come back home, so you won't need to worry about their safety.

Wouldn't you want to know if your nanny or babysitter were entertaining other people in your home? Isn't it comforting to be able to know firsthand that your sitter has taken your children off the school bus and returned them home safely? Wouldn't it be comforting to know that your teenagers arrive home on schedule, and whether they are alone or with friends? With Honeywell Total Connect™ Video Services you can monitor everything and everyone in and around your home and observe what they are doing while you are away.

With Total Connect Video Services you'll feel like you're there, even when you can't be. As your baby grows you'll find many reasons to "stop-in" at home via Total Connect. You may even request that your nanny or sitter text message you to tune in when your baby is hitting a milestone, like taking those first steps or saying their first words. As your child grows, perhaps you'll just want to check in with them and the sitter a few times during the day to make sure they are okay, and that they've done their homework, while you're away on business. Total Connect Video Services are the next best thing to being there. It gives you peace-of-mind, knowing that you can check in on your family from almost anywhere you are, anytime, when you can't be there with them ... because some things really are priceless.
